

SCP 7379

Class: thaumiel/Euclid

Class updated: 5 months

Description updated: 13 days ago

'Earths cradle

Scp 7379-1 is a large crater in the exact middle of the Pacific Ocean and contains a unknown amount of large blue birds. Scp 7379-2 is a colony of large blue or white birds who can be seen emerging from the water once a week if not disturbed. The cradles area is approximately [REDACTED] and is complete surrounded by large black stone spikes apart from a large gates that closes after something has passed through it, it is unknown how it does this but it is believed the area itself is alive. 7379-3 is a large skeletal corpse, which looks like a large snake, located at the bottom of the pit, and has tracing of the amnestic produced by scp 3000 and is believed to be the only other known instance of it. 7379-4 to 7379-57 is a collection of ships ranging from galleons, sloops and 7 instances of modern battleships, except they aren't ruined they are in mint condition, so are the crew on the ship however they are deceased. The water near the cradle is contaminated by a cyan substance which makes the water a light blue colour, the water itself has an amnestic effect, and is actually clotted when not in water it can be used as a short time amnestic or long time depending on how much is consumed. However it has to be used cautiously due to it being freezing temperature.

The creature itself has a length of 25m and width of 30m including wingspan, they do not need food, but hunts for sport, it's oldest ship is nearly 2 thousand years old, but the creatures are believed to be older. When hunting the creatures circle the ship for over 30minutes in packs of 3 before releasing an dense mist that freezes as soon as contact is conducted. The creatures seem to be able to manipulate what has been previously frozen as when a crew of d-class entered many of the treasures on the ships where released distracting them, however when that did not work a single corpse was released attracting the attention of the d-class and ending up in another ship in the graveyard.

The foundation has 2 large structures near the cradle which are used to contain any aquatic anomalies found or to conduct experiments on ones in the wild, it also allows them to contain them with the freezing liquid supplied by scp 7379, these sites have at least two task forces on hand in case they need to neutralise one of the 7379 so far only three eliminations have recorded each invoking an attack on one of sites .

[DATA LOG UPDATED FILE ADDED]

Scp 7379 abilities we now know can perform better in group situations an estimated 30 instances of scp 7379 surfaced causing a tropical storm to be created the storm has set of in the ocean and will cause no environmental damage to any major cities or ground.