'Sentinels'

Scp 7154 is a large metallic structure made out of a plethora of metals including iron tin copper and a tiny amount of gold which represents a small unidentifiable symbol which cannot be translated in any currently known languages.

It's body is built with broad shoulders and long legs with an amour like coating protecting a large amount of pipes and a small reactor, proven to once contain a small amount of radioactive material. It's face is rectangular in appearance and has eight bright red and orange eyes (when functional) they have been seen to rotate their heads and their eyes can travel all the way round their heads using a large amount of cogs and wires, they stand at a rough height of 12ft the tallest at 20ft and shortest 5ft.

They where first discovered when the dig site which once held scp 2406 collapsed to which twelve instances of 2406 appeared immediately they began excavating the dig site collecting any scraps of the anomaly, which where not yet found by the foundation. The tunnel which they arrived in was an estimated 15miles long. The scraps of the anomaly where soon hauled of by 7154 they than began rebuilding the scraps like a jigsaw somehow providing moulding heat and professionally reconstructing the lower left of the torso. They where contained when they began a course towards the contained 2406. They are capable of speech and have communicated with many of the staff, most of them have a sense of humour and emotion. Some even getting offended by being called a 'machine.' They prefer to stay in groups and have a well-being for each other and staff, even being seen breaking out of containment to provide help with breakouts they have been observed protecting researchers and even taking other scps

Into a tranquillised state even helping return the scps

Back to their cells. However friendly and protective when a d-class who had committed a murder entered their testing chamber they where beaten to near death, when a researcher asked them why they did it they stated 'he was not trustworthy and had to be expunged' they only seem to be aggressive to people who are psychotic or seem to be capable of murder.

When a instance of 7154 was dissected (apart from a complicated pulley system of cogs and wires) was a small dotted screen showing ten dots behind their eyes. One of the dots was showing the scrap which was previously collected by that instance on closer inspection the scrap also had a red tracker, confirming that their are ten instances of scp 2406, before this they considered digging the rest of 2406 up but was soon denied by the 05 when the screen was found as all of them where called 'needs repairing' one was titled 'functional' when strike force [DATA EXPUNGED] arrived at the scene they found that it was buried far below the ground unable to escape and was left of fear of it [DATA EXPUNGED]

However all the instances found at the dig site of 2406 Including other parties of them who have been found wondering near other instances of 2406, have been friendly.many have been found located at the borders of the Daevites a gruesome ritualistic tribe who have a book labelled [DATA EXPUNGED] held at [DATA EXPUNGED] which drains ink or exposed blood even dried which slowly writes more of their history however being wiped out thousands of years ago every time the book expands they explain how out of pure luck they survive a instance of war. Many bands of 7154 where shown bordering and patrolling the extinct Daevites when confronted by the foundation they where in immediate attack mode switching their arms into a saw which is concealed in their left arm, they soon had killed 3 of the staff in the group, one of the staff proclaimed they where friendly to which the instances began slowing down, they where soon calmed down to which they Showed extreme sorrow of the deaths calling the two dead bodies 'pure people' they even buried the bodies. The 7154 located at Daevites borders are labelled as -2 due to them having more violent tendencies compared to 5607-1. A lot of scraps of 7154 have been found within Daevite structures and artefacts including a valley which shows a war between them finding a rough estimate of 157 instances of 7154 even some of them alive patrolling the abandoned davite structures.

Scp 682 was also tested with them, five instances of 7154 was put in the cell to which 682 proclaimed 'so now your not even.. original with your hopeless attempts to kill me' showing that he might be a couple hundred years old. Due to them being recently discovered research is still underway.
